READING EXERCISE: SOUNDS SO SIMILAR

Let's learn all about alliteration! Alliteration is a repeat of similar sounds in a sentence. It's used by authors to create rhythm and cadence in a sentence.

For example:

The clever cat carefully crept up the stairs.

Try underlining the words with alliteration:

1. Positively Potent Potions was proving pretty problematic.
2. Wily witches wish they could cast caustic spells.
3. Abigail absolutely abhors History of Witchery.
4. Cheddar cheese chunks taste tantalizingly terrific!
5. The swamps are dark, dreary, and dangerous.

Try writing your own:
