SMUDGE'S FALL ADVENTURE

Fall is the time for reading a great story in a warm, cozy spot. Instead of just reading a great story, write a new story about Smudge! Choose one of the story starters or create your own.

Smudge was reading in the library when something strange caught their attention. One empty space on the shelf was surrounded by dusty fingerprints—but there was no book in sight. When Smudge looked again, a title had appeared on the shelf: The Book That Wasn't There. Smudge reached for it, and the lights suddenly went out...

While walking through a forest covered in autumn leaves, Smudge noticed something sticking out from the ground. It was an old map. At the top were the words: "Follow the path before the last leaf falls." The map showed a trail that led through the woods to a place Smudge had never seen before, but there was one problem... The map seemed to be changing as Smudge followed it!

On Halloween night, Smudge met a young witch sitting beside a pile of books. The witch looked worried. "I've forgotten how to make my magic work," she said. She had tried three spells already. The first turned her hat into a pumpkin. The second made every book in the library start singing. The third...Well, Smudge wasn't exactly sure what the third spell had done. Suddenly, something began knocking from inside one of the books.
